Research Interest and Expertise

My research focuses on identifying nutrition and health disparities in specific populations using a mixed-methods approach. I also develop and implement nutrition communication interventions based on health behavior theories, targeting different socioecological levels, from individuals to policy. My specific content areas of interest include dietary patterns and eating behaviors, sports nutrition and dietetics, and eating disorders across the life cycle.

Research Experiences

- 2025 – 2027      Developing in-country capacity to collect low-cost, high quality, granulated data on individual dietary intake across Africa and Asia (local principal investigator – Thailand)
Principal Investigator: Georg Lietz, PhD.
